TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

The Thomas Concert Season Brilliantly Opened.

Another Great Flood in the Mississippi Valley,

Destroying Property and Causing Much Distress.

Thomas at Denver.

DENVER, June 19.—Theodore Thomas' orchestra arrived in Denver early this morning, and this evening gave the initial concert of the series at the Tabor Grand opera house. The auditorium was filled to repletion. Only standing room was obtainable after 8 o'clock. An excursion party of fifty persons were present from Longmont. In every respect the concert was a grand success, Miss Thursby and Mrs. Cole being recalled four times, and many orchestral numbers encored. It was the universal verdict of the audience that no musical treat like the present has ever been given western people. The season opens most brilliantly and the entire week's success is beyond peradventure. Telegraphic orders for reserved seats during the rest of the concert season are being continually received from cities throughout the state.

Simpson Sues for Damages.

DENVER, June 19.—This morning papers were filed in the district court by the attorneys for Lionel Simpson, suing Sutro Newmark, of New York city, for $100,000 damages. The suit was also brought against A. H. Rout and Marx Neff for $9,000, the amount of their liabilities in the case. The suits arise out of the proceedings against Mr. Simpson several months ago.

Eastern Floods

KANSAS CITY, June 19.—The situation along the river is not materially changed today. The water has risen about eight inches since last night, and this evening is nearly stationary.

A dispatch from Brownsville, below Plattsmouth, in Nebraska, says the river fell an inch and a half this afternoon.

SCRANTON, June 19.—The rain storm last night did considerable damage in this vicinity. Several families living on flats were compelled to wade in water over a foot deep. Several business houses lost considerable owing to flooding of cellars. Railroad travel is slightly impeded.

Most of the trains east and north are still interrupted. The Alton, Chicago and St. Louis are running as usual, and the Missouri Pacific to St. Louis. The Hannibal sent out its passengers to night going four miles down the river by ferry to Randolph and there transferring. No trains run on the Rock Island to-night, although they came through this morning by a roundabout way. The Wabash, the Council Bluffs and the Burlington to Denver have been abandoned since Saturday. The Missouri Pacific north is also submerged. Resumption of trains will depend upon the rise or fall of the river. Damage, except to railroad property, as yet has been comparatively light.

LEAVENWORTH, Ks., June 19.—The river is 19 feet 10 inches and rising slowly. Rock Island trains are still abandoned and the Missouri Pacific had only one passenger and a stock train through. A train arrived on the Kansas Central, the first since Saturday. So far there is no damage of consequence by the freshet but if the river continues to rise some little wheat may be flooded by to-morrow.

LITTLE ROCK, June 19.—The Gazette's Helena special says: The rise of the river here is steady and alarmingly great. It has risen seven inches a day with something less than eight feet below high water. Much of the bottom country is already suffering.

SENECA, Ks., June 19.—Besides the loss of life reported from here last night, particulars were received later of the drowning of the family of John Grebb, fourteen miles north, Sunday morning. He attempted to leave his house with his wife and four children. The wagon was overturned by the current, passing off the road, and Mrs. Grebb and all the children drowned. This makes twelve lives lost Sunday morning. The little town of Cincinnati was totally submerged all day Sunday, and the loss to property there is very great. A wagon load of provisions were sent from here to day to relieve distress.

KANSAS CITY, June 19.—The river at 11 p. m. was 28 feet and on a stand. The damage by the storms of Saturday night and Sunday seems to have been chiefly in Southeastern Nebraska, where the loss to crops and bridges is said to be very great. Some of Northeastern Kansas and Northwestern Missouri also suffered, but less seriously.

ST. LOUIS, June 19. The river has risen nine inches. The gauge to night is 37 feet 7 inches. No material damage is yet done property in this immediate vicinity, and even though the water should raise two feet higher the destruction will not be great. The eastern part of St. Charles county is submerged and great damage is being done growing crops. The river is still rising. Water at that point is now two inches higher than two years ago, when the high line was only exceeded by the flood of 1844. Damage to crops and farm property in St. Charles county so far is estimated at $100,000, and it is expected a good deal of cotton land along the river between here and Cairo will be submerged, but no reports of material damage are yet received.

Cyclonic Ravages

STEUBENVILLE, June 19.—Hundreds of people visited the scene of the cyclone to-day and viewed with astonishment the destruction of property in the city. The storm appears to have formed about a mile west of here, moved eastward and reached the high hill overlooking the northern portion of the city, when it descended with terrific force damaging and destroying most everything in its path as it swept across the city a distance of half a mile and plunged into the waters of the Ohio, lifting them up in the shape of a water spout a distance of a hundred feet. The most remarkable thing is the fact that no one was injured, as the storm passed over a thickly inhabited part of the city.

Weather Probabilities.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Indications for Colorado, partly cloudy weather and light local rains.

The storm which was central north of the lower lake region yesterday morning is now central in the St. Lawrence valley. There are indications that a second disturbance is slowly developing in the Rocky mountain region and is central in Colorado.

Heavy Hail

KANSAS CITY, June 19.—A Times special from Medicine Lodge, Ks., 250 miles southwest of here, near the line of the Territory, says the severest hail storm ever known in that section occurred last night. Many young calves were killed and herds stampeded.

Deeds of Violence.

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 19.—The Picayune's Mansfield, La., special says: The preliminary examination has begun of Rev. Ben. T. Jenkins, jr., for the murder of Rev. J. Lane Borden. Immediately after the shooting District Attorney Hall wrote John S. Butler, father of the young lady, whose name is involved in the matter giving him the particulars of the tragedy and the alleged cause being the ruin of his daughter. Butler replied, "There is not one word of truth in the charge you refer to. I regret very much that Jenkins took up such an idea. My daughter says she said nothing to Mr. Jenkins from which he possibly could infer anything of the kind." The lady is 18 years old, handsome and unusually intelligent. Jenkins seems to have suffered from hallucination when he fired the fatal shot.

DETROIT, June 19.—Early this morning Martin Brophy, farmer, whose home is in the town of New Haven, north of Owasso, was beaten to death at West Owasso by Jack Phelps or Phillips and Arthur Steinhoff, two men who had been on a heavy carouse. Meeting Brophy on the street, they struck him, then chased him. Owing to the hour Brophy was unable to find protection. He was overtaken and beaten senseless, dying soon after. Steinhoff was arrested. Officers are in pursuit of Phelps. Brophy was an industrious and respectable man and leaves a family.

CINCINNATI, June 19.—Alderman J. J. Kelly this evening shot and fatally wounded James Toal, at the fire engine house, Sixth street near Vine. Bystanders say Toal came up laughing and exchanged hats with Kelly, who immediately acted as if insulted and warned Toal not to fool with him. Toal assured him he was only in fun, but Kelly drew a revolver and deliberately fired. The ball entered his side near the heart. Kelly tried to fire a second shot but was prevented by Detective Mead, who received the hammer on his hand as it fell for the second shot. Toal is still living, but unconscious. Kelly was immediately arrested. He has been in a number of minor brawls. In '76 he was convicted and punished for procuring an illegal vote. He has been alderman a number of years.

CINCINNATI, June 19.—The Commercial Gazette's Otoville, O., special says: Frank McNamara and Jas. Cannon, moulders, quarrelled about tools when McNamara struck Cannon a heavy blow with his fist in the face, causing death in a few minutes.

The Markets

NEW YORK, June 19. Governments firm; railroads irregular; states generally quiet. Stocks opened feverish, ruled generally quiet, closed steadier but dull. The result of the day's business was a fractional decline in a majority of stocks. Sales 300,000 shares.

The Sunderland Calamity.

LONDON, June 19.—The funerals of a great many victims of Saturday's disaster at Sunderland took place to-day. The streets were crowded with people, amongst whom many were in mourning. Blinds of houses were drawn and the church in which the services were held bore a black flag at half mast. One hundred free graves were prepared in one cemetery for the reception of victims, exclusive of those for which the parents of children who lost their lives will pay. Fifty-four bodies were interred in this cemetery today, and thirty-one in a smaller cemetery. A large number of generous subscriptions are arriving in Sunderland from different parts to help pay the funeral expenses of the unfortunate children. Among the subscriptions is £100 from Andrew Carnegie, New York. The balance of the fund after funeral expenses have been defrayed will be devoted to the children's convalescent home.

SUNDERLAND, June 19.—The number of deaths from the catastrophe at Victoria Hall has now reached 202.

Frank James' Trial

KANSAS CITY, June 19.—The Journal's Gallatin, Mo., special says. The cases against Frank James for murder in connection with the Gallatin bank robbery fourteen years ago and the Winston train robbery in '81, were called to-day and on application of defense continued until August 20th. Defense asked for continuance on the ground that their witnesses might not be able to arrive for several days on account of interruption of travel by freshets. The state's counsel were presented with Mrs. Sarah Hite, and three other witnesses from Tennessee, whose presence was evidently a surprise to the defense. Mrs. Hite was prepared to testify to conversations among the James boys and others at her house, implicating them. Dick Little is also here for the prosecution. The plea defense in continuance is looked on as an excuse. The prisoner is in ordinary health and the usual large crowd was present, eager for a near view of him.

Railroad Wrecks

BALTIMORE, June 19.—Passenger train No. 3 on the Baltimore & Ohio railway, due in Baltimore at 7 10 this morning from the west, was derailed near Irontown, nine miles east of Grafton, at 10.30 last night by striking a tree that the violent storm raging at the time had blown on the track. The engine, baggage, express and seven cars were thrown from the track and damaged and one truck of each passenger car derailed. The engineer and baggagemaster were injured seriously, but none of the passengers hurt. A delay of seven hours followed.

ALBANY, June 19. The steamboat express train, owing to a misplaced switch, ran in a siding and struck a box car under which John Wallace, master mechanic, and William Rayner, yardmaster, of the Delaware and Hudson canal, were repairing a truck. The two men were killed and the engine wrecked.

New Mexicans Aroused

LAS VEGAS, N. M., June 19.—Judge Axtell refused to day to grant rehearing of the Otero and attorneys Bostwick, Downs and Vincent on application for habeas corpus. Imprisonment of attorneys for refusing to divulge advice given clients is regarded as an outrage on men in high standing. The San Pedro and Cañon del Agua companies are doing all in their power to recover the property. The popular feeling throughout the territory shows the people are determined to have an investigation of fraudulent land grants and the San Pedro company will be compelled to stand suit for their mine. There is no question in the minds of the people conversant with the facts that the Oteros own it, and they declare they will never surrender possession if they stay in jail the rest of their lives.

American Tax on Art.

ROME, June 19.—In the chamber of deputies to-day several members expressed regret that the United States government had unduly taxed objects of art imported into the United States and they demand reprisals. Magliana, minister of finance, and Baccilli, minister of public instruction, while they blamed the action of the United States congress in imposing tax on imported objects of art, yet hoped that diplomatic negotiations would procure better terms. They added that reprisals would be useless, especially because of the impossibility of fixing real value to objects of vertu. A motion was ultimately adopted requesting the introduction of a special bill dealing with the question.

Suing Editors

DODGE CITY, Ks., June 19.—W. A. Pettitton, district clerk and a prominent democratic politician, has commenced suit for libel against A. B. Klaine for $10,000. Klaine is editor of the Dodge City Times and postmaster. The postmaster seems shaky in his situation, as charges of corruption have caused special agents to investigate his office.

NEW YORK, June 19. Chong Foo, editor of the Chinese American, is in jail on a charge of libel brought against him by Chan Pond Lipp. The plaintiff was referred to in Foo's paper as a criminal and thief. He wants $25,000 damages.

The Bombardment of Tamatave.

LONDON, June 19. With reference to Admiral Pierre's dispatch announcing the capture of Tamatave, Malgassy envoys state that the demands of the French were preposterous. They knew the ultimatum would be rejected. The queen of Madagascar gave stringent orders to return the French fire. She recalled most of her troops to the capital, and 200 only remained at Tamatave to maintain order. The nation will fight to the bitter end. Meanwhile it is hoped the powers will interfere. The envoys regard the bombardment of Tamatave as a wanton cruelty. There is fear that many foreign residents of Tamatave were killed.

His Brother's Wife.

MILWAUKEE, June 19.—The police are looking for C. G. Synold, who eloped yesterday with the wife of his brother, Ernest. They live at Menominee, Mich., on a farm, but C. G. Synold persuaded Ernest to sell his place and start for Portland, Oregon. They arrived here Saturday and the brothers went off on a little spree, in which C. G. Synold got possession of Ernest's pocketbook, containing $600, and he and Mrs. Ernest Synold disappeared. It seems that Ernest had not seen his brother for twenty years until a short time ago, they having been separated in Germany when mere lads.

Emancipation Day.

GALVESTON, June 19. The News' specials show Emancipation day was enthusiastically celebrated throughout Texas everywhere by picnics, processions, dinners, orations and reading proclamations. In Galveston all prisoners were released from the city jail. At San Antonio the feature of the street parade was a four-horse chariot bearing girls representing the goddess of liberty and each different state of the union. On the grounds were twenty-three wagon loads of water melons.

Saloonists Rustling.

CHICAGO, June 19. Under the impulse of the ordinance passed by the city council last night, anticipating the effect of the new state license law in July, extending the license year ten months, there was an unprecedented rush for saloon licenses to-day. The work aggregated nearly five hundred. It is urged that the legality of the ordinance is very doubtful, and in the event of the extended license being declared void the supposition is that saloon keepers will lose their fee of $103 and forfeit their licenses as well.

New York Republicans.

NEW YORK, June 19. The republican central committee this morning adopted a plan of reorganization prepared by the committee of 13. The only changes made in it by the executive committee are that the proposed enrollment shall be made in November after the general election instead of September, and that all who call themselves republicans, whether they belong to district organizations or not, may be enrolled.

Alabama Claims.

WASHINGTON, June 19. The court of commissioners of Alabama claims to-day decided that subjects of Great Britain residing at the time within the United States and sailing on the high seas under protection of its flag were embraced within the beneficial provisions of the two acts establishing and reestablishing the court of commissioners of Alabama claims on an equal footing with all other resident aliens.

Drawbridge Nuisances

WASHINGTON, June 19.—In reply to inquiry on the subject the secretary of the treasury states that no special acts of congress regulate the conditions for opening drawbridges in all navigable waters in this country, but if a private citizen shall be aggrieved by the closing of a drawbridge he has his action at common law for damages, and possibly under the statutes. A drawbridge which was not properly and seasonably opened might be indicted as a nuisance.

Fires

LYONS, June 19. Fire broke out in a wood store this evening which soon covered two acres. Forty railway cars burned. Train service between Lyons and Geneva is interfered with.

GRANTS PASS, Oregon, June 19.—Fire destroyed the greater part of the town last night. Loss $150,000; insurance unknown.

Longfellow's English Admirers

LONDON, June 19.—The secretary of the committee to place a bust of Longfellow in Westminster Abbey presented the American committee five hundred letters from persons of note who subscribed toward the expenses of the bust, to be kept in some public institution in New England as a testimonial of the high esteem in which the poet was held by the best minds of Great Britain.

MANITOU.

Notes and Personal Items.

Madame Modjeska, who has just finished an engagement at Denver, her husband, Count Bozenta her son, Ralph Modjeska, and Forbes Dawson, made up a party who registered at the Manitou house yesterday. They will spend several days at Manitou. They intended to start this morning on a trip to Pike's Peak, where they will pass the night, returning to Manitou to-morrow.

We were mistaken yesterday in saying that the plunge bath would be open every afternoon from two to four for ladies. The arrangement was only for last Monday afternoon, and it has not yet been decided just what time will be given to ladies. On Monday the ladies did not patronize the plunge bath very well.

While waiting at one of the hotels the reporter was edified by a discussion of the Bacon Shakespeare question, a discussion which took a wider range, making mention of Goethe and Milton and others of the great masters in literature. So it seems that in the land of hotels and pleasures and springs and scenery the world of letters is not forgotten.

Mrs. N. O. Vosburgh, who is with a party at the Cliff, is the wife of a well-known Denver merchant. A large number of Denver people were registered at the Cliff yesterday.

State Engineer Nettleton and County Surveyor Meek are surveying the Iron spring property, which has been sold to an Alton, Illinois, syndicate. Extensive improvements will be made. Negotiations were first started last summer but on account of difficulty in regard to the survey the sale has only just been effected.

Mr. John Kelley, who is at the Beebee, is the celebrated violinist of California. Mr. Kelley has been before the public for half a century, and has the reputation of being an excellent musician. In California, where most of his work has been done, he stands high. Mr. Kelley, assisted by his wife as organist and pianist, will give a concert at the Saratoga Hall, Beebee House, this evening. The performance will be both vocal and instrumental.

There was a good list of arrivals yesterday.

The act of photographing a baby on a burro was witnessed by the reporter yesterday. It seemed more amusing to some other people than to the baby, but the burro didn't mind it a bit. Apparently the burro would as soon be photographed as do anything else.

Mr. H. B. Scott and Mr. A. Montmorency, who are at the Beebee, are connected with the Burlington road.

General George H. Gordon, of Boston, is registered at the Beebee.

Travel to the Peak is quite brisk. The trip is quite readily made in one day.

ON THE RIO GRANDE.

Inducements to Settlers in the Rio Grande Valley.

Grazing Capabilities of the Country Stock Enterprises.

Treasures of Precious Metals in Texas and New Mexico.

London Times.

The Rio Grande valley, one to ten miles wide for sixty miles above and below El Paso, offers small inducements for settlement; the soil, where not light and sandy, is rocky and bare, redeemed by only occasional sweeps where deposits of plant food have been made, where grass is abundant and where other crops might be successfully cultivated. The rainfall is light, the record at Fort Craig, in Socorro county, is 11 07 inches per annum; it falls chiefly during June and July. More favorable reports are given of the grazing capabilities of Grant's county, the southeasterly portion of the territory. On the Duck creek of the Gila river, an English company has made a purchase costing $100,000, while George Hurst, for Californian investors, has bought up a lot of water rights at Cow Springs, where there are thermal as well as cold waters, and where property is likely to improve in value, for Fort Bayard is only twenty miles north, and is to be largely added to, and made one of the principal military stations of the southwest. Indians having been removed from the older and more settled districts, the forts there, it is believed, may be reduced or abandoned; and outlying frontier forts, such as Bayard, strengthened and enlarged.

Twelve miles southeast of El Paso on the Rio Grande is Isletta, founded by Coronado, a Spanish explorer and military adventurer, said to have been built in 1540, and hence claiming to be the oldest town in this part of the states. Irrigation and cultivation here produce good crops. Eastward are more than a million acres of plains, offered for sale at 75 cents an acre, well clothed with good strong, closely set gamma grasses; but hitherto useless owing to the absence of water, for which an enterprising Italian count is now in search by sinking artesian wells. Twenty-five miles east of El Paso, among the southern foothills of the Hueco mountains, the country is fairly settled by small farmers. Here, amid the granite rocks, are curious natural tanks, some twelve to twenty feet long, eight to ten feet wide, and as deep, which get filled once a year with the summer rains, and suffice to supply water for the passing traveller and his stock. And thankful is the wayfarer for such providential provision, for proceeding east he finds no water for forty miles until he reaches, also among rocks, the Cornuda springs. There is the same sad scarcity of water in the north, not a spring or lake is met within the wide stretch of rolling grassy plain extending fifty miles to the Sacramento mountains, and some of the water springs marked on the maps amongst the foot hills are only to be depended upon for a part of the year. The country here for hundreds of miles has not yet been surveyed. Cattle and horses were apt to be stolen by Indians from the Apache reservation; and parties from El Paso prospecting this region sometimes still take with them an escort of half a score of the Mexican Rangers. About Fort Stanton, still north of the reservation, the country is poor and rocky. The Hondo, one of the most important tributaries of the Pecos, rises here, runs seventy-five miles nearly east through a better grass country, much of it already occupied, and exhibits the usual peculiarity of streams of this country, disappearing entirely in places for ten or a dozen miles. In the Pecos valley is Roswell, a Mexican town, the center of a great sheep country, the headquarters of the Chisum Brothers, who a few years ago were the cattle kings of this country, were credited with the possession of 150 miles of water front and 70,000 cattle, as well as large flocks of sheep, and who were active participators in the Lincoln riots, in which seven years ago a hundred armed cowboys were rallied by each faction and repeatedly met in sanguinary conflict. From Roswell downwards along its slow, tortuous course for upwards of 200 miles through New Mexico, all the best parts of the Pecos river are settled. The flockmasters, many of whom have upwards of 10,000 sheep, appear well satisfied with their prospects, and declare that the wool, although averaging less than 2 lb per sheep, and worth about 16 cents per pound, pays all expenses, and that the annual 80 to 90 per cent. of lambs from each 100 ewes is all profit. The quality of the wool in some flocks is being raised by the use of merino bucks; three-year-old wethers usually realize about $8 each. Many of the tributaries of the Pecos get lost for miles in the loose sandy plains, leaving only scattered pools which mark their course. The Penasco, besides several smaller disappearances this summer, leaves a dry, sandy gravel bed for a distance variously stated at forty and sixty miles. Proceeding south through the Seven Rivers country there is good grass and water, and although settlement was only begun this spring most of the best locations are already appropriated. Throughout these plains are large bands of antelope; ducks and geese are plentiful about the rivers and creeks; on the lower ranges are abundance of black-tailed deer and wild turkey, while in the Sacramento and Organ mountains are elk and long-tailed white deer.

New Mexico and Western Texas are rich in mineral treasures. In the Organ Mountains, in Doña Ana county, fifteen miles west of Las Cruces, on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe road, about forty-five miles north of El Paso, some thirty mines have been opened; several shafts are already down 150 feet, and most are working contracts between the limestone and the porphyry. The products are carbonate and oxide of copper, native horn, chloride and sulphide of silver. On the eastern slopes gold is found in scales, flour, and nugget—a piece of three pounds was recently got out containing 75 per cent of the pure metal. These Lake Valley mines have cost their present owners half a million dollars. Probably the most promising is the Sierra Grande. The vein, found close on the surface, about a foot in depth, gradually increases to 120 feet. Twenty-five feet down, just under the limestone cover, is the celebrated bridal chamber, cut into four galleries, the walls of carbonate and chloride of silver, the latter in places in soft crystals, which can be moulded in the hand, and from which the metal separates when exposed to the heat of a candle. In the second gallery lies Jackson's Baby, a mass of ore 6 feet long, 4 feet wide, and 2 feet thick, said to be worth $30,000 to $80,000, another lump, the size of which is still undetermined, protrudes at the east end; this part of the mine is not now being worked, but Governor Stafford, of Arizona, is said to have offered $50,000 for the privilege of working for ten hours in this chamber and having all that he could himself bring out in that time. From another part of the vein 65 tons of ore are brought up daily; the assays range from 60 to 72 per cent pure silver. Water is pumped four miles from the lake. The stamp mill was put up three months ago at a cost of $120,000. Twenty miles further east, at Kingston, are four mines, just opened, furnishing silver sulphide. From one of these, the Bulletin, fifty tons of ore lie ready for shipment. Twenty four tons taken from the first eighteen feet worked at the Lake Valley went $10,400. A few miles north are the group of mines at Perchas, near St. Clara and Solitaire, where superficial silver deposits and floats have been found and workings have commenced. For the reduction of these ores abundance of good bituminous coal is found within 100 miles north at White Oaks, above the Indian reservation, about seventy miles west of the Atchison & Topeka track at Fort Craig. Whether the coal will be carried to the ores, or the ores to the coal, or both brought down to El Paso, as the good folks of that town earnestly desire, is still undetermined. The hills and mountains, chiefly of porphyry, with occasional outcroppings of limestone, afford in many places abundant indications of copper and silver, with here and there iron pyrites and oxide. A great deal of prospecting is going on. In Texas possession of land carries with it all underneath, but in New and also generally in Old Mexico minerals are not sold with the land, and on unoccupied or unworked spots any one may erect his monument of stones, taking in 1,500 feet by 300 feet, and has 90 days during which he can file his claim at the county seat. Hundreds of those claims, many of them worthless, are being sold every week. A great deal of profitless speculation is going on, but systematic and profitable operations will be gradually introduced.

"FRANCESCA DA RIMINI."

Barrett's Idea of the Characters in This Play.

On Friday evening next Lawrence Barrett will appear at the opera house in "Francesca da Rimini." In an interview with a reporter of the Boston Herald, Mr. Barrett gave the following as his idea of the characters in this play.

When asked if the story of "Francesca da Rimini" was told by Boker as Dante, Boccaccio, Shelley, Leigh Hunt and others tell it, Lawrence Barrett said:

"Yes, but differently, for Mr. Boker has changed the motive of action from the point where all the others place it—that of sympathy with the woman and the lover—to that of sympathy with the injured husband."

"'Lanciotto' is a kind of 'Richard the Third?'"

"In valor, yes; but in nothing else, except the disfiguring humps."

"How about the deformed jester in 'The Fool's Revenge?'"

"He was actuated by revenge, remember, as well as by love of his daughter. 'Lanciotto' is unselfish. He shuns his kind, and when not in action broods upon his deformity, exaggerating it, as is the habit with high-strung sensitive natures. To his brother 'Paolo' all the graces have been given. He is the Adonis of the gay Riminese, who stand in dread of his hero brother."

"This great marriage scene that the critics speak so highly of—is it fully put on the stage?"

"Yes, it is almost spectacular, representing the interior of a church, and having a procession, with choir boys and correct costumes. Then news comes that the 'Ghibeline' faction have broken the truce and are on the march for Rimini. Lanciotto, leaving his bride, flies to the defense of his country. His absence gives the guilty love of Paolo and Francesca opportunity to break all restraint. The court jester, Pepe, whose whimsical humor has conceived a mortal hatred toward both the brothers, discovers the faithless pair in the very lists of love."

"Who plays that part?"

"Mr. Louis James, and he makes it most thrilling. He carries the odious story to 'Lanciotto,' among his soldiers, and is slain for his treason by the outraged husband, who sets out like a madman for 'Rimini.' The brother, too weak to kill himself, is immolated, and the tragedy ends in the sacrifice of all, a climax which is exceeded nowhere in all the tragedy that I have ever seen."

"To return to the question of comeliness or the lack of it, Mr. Barrett, do you think that the unsightliness of 'Lanciotto' is an impediment to winning the favor of the audience?"

"Unquestionably it is so at first. The sentiment excited by him at sight is that of revulsion, but after he has shown himself to be symmetrical and lovely in character, the deformity becomes a help, because it increases the pity for his trouble. I have found this to be so in Philadelphia and Chicago cities of widely different tastes."

Yesterday was celebrated as Emancipation Day.

The Chicago city council has tried to evade the new high license state law

Hon. Abram S. Hewitt, of New York, has been suggested as the democratic candidate for the presidency.

The New York Tribune says that "The enterprising first assistant postmaster-general is steadily and surely gaining on the father of his country. Another postoffice has been named Hatton. This is the twentieth bearing that name"

It was stated that some of the star-routers intended to sue the New York Times for libel. The Times answered that some of the star-routers were thieves and defied them to bring suits. Probably they don't want this additional vindication

The New York city press is largely controlled by foreigners George Jones, of the Times, Oswald Ottendorffer, of the Staats-Zeitung, the two Pulitzers, of the World and Morning Journal respectively, Carl Schurz and E. L. Godkin, of the Evening Post, are none of them native born Americans

The Denver News sensibly remarks: "Indian Agent Wilcox insists that General Crook is wrong in asking to have the captured Chiricahuas retured to the San Carlos reservation. General Crook knows more about the Indians in a minute than Agent Wilcox does in a year, and his judgement will be accepted as correct by the country. Of course if Mr. Wilcox don't like what is done he can astonish his acquaintances by resigning"

A recent act of the contract portion of the postoffice department has excited much unfavorable comment. A mail contract between Fort Niobrara, Nebraska, and Deadwood, Dakota, was awarded to John R. Miner, one of the defendants in the star route cases, who was convicted at the first trial. This certainly looks bad, and if the contracting officials have not the discretion of refusing such bids, then such discretion should be speedily granted But according to reports there was little disposition to object to Miner as contractor, with Vaile, another of the star route gang, on his bond. And furthermore, there is much doubt expressed as to the need of this mail route any way, as Deadwood already has very good mail facilities.

An eastern paper, speaking of the fact that the children of the Apache prisoners are to be placed in government schools, approves of this as "a humane policy on the part of the government. Though the children will not be, in fact, hostages for the good behavior of their savage parents, they will still be considered in that light by the Apaches themselves, whose notions of the good faith of white men are tempered by their own ferocity. Every Apache youngster that we can send back to the reservation instructed in the arts of peace and able to read and write will be worth a dozen soldiers to keep the peace hereafter. It is a pity that we did not undertake to educate the Indian before we undertook to exterminate them"

Some of the papers think that John Bright has just finished a quarter of a century of service in parliament. In fact the recent celebration commemorated his first election to represent Birmingham which occurred twenty-five years ago. Bright was first elected to parliament forty years ago and with the exception of a short period has served ever since. It is now more than fifty years since Gladstone's election to parliament. These long terms of service contrast strangely and in some respects unpleasantly with our American custom. But the fact that a member of parliament need not and frequently does not reside in the place which he represents gives English public men an advantage over American. Bright has represented at least three constituencies, while Gladstone has represented even a larger number.

The Boston Advertiser utters a word of warning against the deadly toy pistol

The Fourth of July feat hand, and we wish to suggest to parents in time that they see to it that their children do not obtain possession of that murderous plaything, the toy pistol We do not know whether or not there are any manufacturers so careless of their responsibility as to be engaged in making for sale these destructive weapons, but shall not be surprised if there are, or if there are dealers who will lay in a stock of them for distribution Very likely they will have a new form, and it may be that improvement making them harmless will be claimed Nevertheless, it is safest to beware of everything of the kind. For three weeks or longer after each Independence day, every journal contained lists of unfortunates who died a terrible death from lockjaw, the result of wounds that, at the time, seemed trifling, caused by toy-pistols. It was a sad record, and at the time it seemed as if it could not be forgotten, but such things are forgotten, parents grow careless, and boys are ignorant or deceived

The Philadelphia Record takes this view of the present objection of the tariff on pig iron:

"It is a significant fact that the best grades of "American pig iron are selling in New York "and Philadelphia for $19 and $20 a ton with "a profit. This price would make foreign "competition extremely precarious at half the "present rate of duty Western pig iron, as "has been frequently shown, can be profitably "made at $16 a ton, and when the cost of "transportation by rail from the seaboard is "taken into account this western iron is be"yond the reach of foreign competition A "heavy duty of $6.72 a ton is, therefore, not "needed for protection, and it is too much for "revenue; but at intervals it serves the pur"pose of taxing the American consumers of "pig-iron for the benefit of a few manufac"turers. In the present gorged condition of "the iron market the tariff does not work; "but after awhile, when the surplus is worked "off and the relations of supply and demand "become more harmonious, the tariff is again "expected to perform its part in putting up "prices against consumers. The tariff thus "becomes an instrument of speculation in"stead of a means of promoting legitimate "trade. It is the interest alike of consumers "and producers to put an end to so pernicious "an obstruction to business as this needlessly "high rate of duty on pig iron."

Governor Grant will not lose popularity through the state because of his refusal to call an extra session of the legislature. According to an interview in the Denver Tribune, Mr. Babcock, private secretary to the governor, gives these reasons why Mr. Grant did not hearken to the Denver papers:

"Well, in the first place, he does not consider it an extraordinary occasion. The framers of the constitution did not probably contemplate the calling of special sessions for such a cause as this."

"Then there is no special hurry about this matter. We do not need a state house right away. The commission find that the legislature in other states have not been so hurried in getting their state buildings."

"It is also setting a bad precedent to call a special session on account of errors in a bill. If that were sufficient reason there might be errors made in a bill in order to get a special session."

"And besides, if there was a special session called there would be no way to limit it as to time. They might occupy forty days fooling with one bill."

It does not seem probable that the commission will either resign or spend the $100,000 intrusted to them So the beginning of our state house will probably be delayed a couple of years But we can afford to wait. The country press is entitled to the thanks of Colorado for the decided stand taken in the matter

Vesuvius in 1871-2.

Edinburg Review

Seen from Naples during the winter of 1871-2, Vesuvius wore an aspect more festal than formidable At intervals a bright-red riband of fire depended, like a decoration, from its summit; while the volcanic character, already betrayed in the graceful inward curves of central subsidence, was accentuated by a vaporous crown occasionally flushed with the nocturnal glow of internal incandescence. The mountain was, however, considered to have entered on a phase of serious agitation; and a minor cone, thrown up just outside the northern edge of the great crater, served at once as the main channel and the visible sign of its renewed activity. High on among the lava fields ominous sounds began to be heard by the end of January, resembling the distant bellow of an infuriated animal, hot sulphurous steam issued from cracks and crevices, and the great crater threw some preliminary bombs On March 25 (with the full moon, Signor Palmieri bids us observe) the volcano tried its powers in a formal eruption, but, as if finding them still inadequate to the grand effort it had in contemplation, suspended its action, and relapsed into comparative tranquility on the 29th. The lava stream issuing from the small cone was, on the following night, crossed close to its source by the present writer without the slightest inconvenience It was already "dead," that is, had ceased to receive reinforcements, and betrayed its recent ignition only through glowing fissures and the instant blazing of any inflammable substance thrust into them A thick column of vapor rose, however, from the orifice, lined red with the reflection from the fiery mass within, and every 20 or 10 seconds the central crater discharged, with a growl and a crash, a volley of red-hot stones, some a foot or more in diameter, which powdered with fire the black ashes of the surrounding plateau, and menaced inquisitive spectators with the utmost penalty of rashness But the most memorable feature of that night's spectacle was the sudden and unexpected apparition of a lurid cloud suspended above the Atrio del Cavallo, (the valley dividing the cone of Vesuvius from the precipices of Somma) showing that the mountain had opened in that direction. Such was the fact, though little noted at the time It constituted, however, a threat which was terribly and fatally executed. A few days later predictions of a great eruption, to come off before April was ended, were circulated in Naples; but they could be traced to no authoritative source, and served only to lend a piquant flavor of coming excitement to the dolce far niente of the Chiaja. Punctually, however, with the next full moon—April 23—the agitation recommenced, and several rivulets of molten rock trickled down to the base of the cone. Then the mountain paused, as if to draw breath, and at 8 o'clock in the evening of the 25th only the open mouths of the two craters were visible, like watch-fires on a hill, their flames alternately rising and falling in rythmical pulsation of repose. Before dawn on the 26th the full fury of the long-threatened eruption had broken loose, the large cone was cleft from summit to base, along the line of weakness previously laid bare, the small cone was blown into the air, and three great lava streams were already well on their way one making for Torre del Greco, another for Resina, and the third directing its course toward Naples itself! The explosion, which occurred at 3.30 a. m., unhappily involved in destruction a party of about 60 excursionists university students and others—who, disregarding the warnings received at the observatory, had rashly ventured into the Atrio del Cavallo. But awe and regret were alike absorbed in amazement at the stupendous spectacle presented by the volcano. Into a sky, which on the side of Naples was as blue as April could make it, huge volumes of steam discharged themselves, and ascending with extraordinary velocity to a height of at least 10,000 feet, (such is the unimpeachable assertion of the photographic lens,) hung poised below the zenith in solid-looking, flocculent masses of dazzling white ness A torrent of projectiles, furrowing the column of issuing vapors with livid and fiery gleams, outdid even the fierce haste of their up-rush, while the entire background was rendered of an inky blackness by dense clouds of falling ashes and lapilli. "We have an obligation to the wind," a soldier remarked in passing; "if it blew the other way, Addio Napoli!" This, however, was figurative; the danger to Naples was at no time extreme.

An Artist and a Rainbow.

Nature.

One artist, who shall be nameless, has attempted to grace his picture by introducing into it a rainbow. Now, if the rainbow had been part of the human form it would have been studied, there would have been books about it, and the artist would have made it as much his own as the student of physical science, since some artists study anatomy as closely as does the man of medicine, but, because the rainbow happens to lie outside that branch of scientific knowledge which is generally supposed to be the only branch to to which artists need turn their attention, the painter thinks that he may treat it anyhow. Thus we have had rainbows with the colors—which in nature are absolutely definitely in their order and are arrangement painted in reverse order, again, we have had a rainbow, which must always appear to form part of a circle, painted in perspective; but the rainbow fancier of this year has almost transcended the want of observation shown by his predecessors Possibly ignorant of the fact that all primary rainbows are alike, that the order of colors, from red through orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo, to violet, is dominated by a most rigid law, to which there is, and can be, no exception, the artist has chosen to paint his rainbow with the violet in the middle. This seems to indicate either such looseness of observation or such contempt for nature—and the painter may take his choice between these two alternatives—that we doubt whether side by side with either there can exist that sympathy with nature which must lie at the root of all good work in art.

Difficulties of Catching Outlaws

LOUISVILLE, June 19 —A special to the Courier-Journal from Mt Sterling, Ky, says: A detachment of troops was sent to the mountains of Manifee county to capture the two remaining bandits of Barnett's gang, six of whom have been sentenced to the penitentiary for life They returned to-night unsuccessful The friends of the outlaws by firing guns and building signal fires on mountain tops warned them of every approach and though the troops were within a mile of the bandits for three days they could get no closer, and finally ordered a return The country is very rough and the inhabitants are friendly to the outlaws

The Old Greek Goldsmith

C. T Newton, in National Review

The skill in beating out and inlaying gold and other metals to which Homer so often alludes, is attested by the remains found in the tombs at Mycenæ, of which perhaps the most Homeric are the designs on the scabbards of swords, which at the time when Dr Schliemann's book appeared were too much incrusted with rust to be made out, but which have been recently engraved and described by Mr Koumanoudes The subjects represented on these scabbards are a lion hunt, a lion attacking a herd of deer, winged monsters, fish, and plants The manes of the lions are of red gold, their bodies of paler gold, probably electrum. So with the flowers—the stalk, leaves and branches, are of gold, the calyxes of electrum The same distinction of color is observed between the sea and the fish swimming in it, and also in representing the birds in which the color of the blood flowing from their wounds is discriminated from the color of their feathers Further variety is obtained by the use of enamel in portions of the back ground In the description of the plowing, on the shield of Achilles, the poet says that the furrow behind the plowman was black, as plowed land is, although being of gold Probably to produce a change of color, a dark enamel such as that found in the scabbards, was combined with the gold. Homer, therefore, so far from inventing the shield of Achilles out of his imagination, as was formerly contended, derived many details both of subject and technical execution from works of art which he had actually seen, and which inspired him with the conception of what a work by the god Hephaestos himself might have been So, again, in regard to the choice of subjects on these scabbards, and throughout the Mycenæan antiquities, they prove that when Hesiod describes the crown of Pandora as ornamented with "all manner of creatures such as the sea and the land breed," he borrowed these ornaments from the art of his own time

The Safety Pin

Academy

Taking the common 'safety pin' as a starting point, the various types into which the variants fall are classified and exemplified very thoroughly in this little study Not a single part of this simple, though not primitive, instrument but has suffered some strange metamorphosis Now the catch is flattened into a disk or diamond shaped plate, now lengthened into a tube, now knobbed and put back to the bow, the bow is alternately shortened, lengthened, squared, rounded, decked with studs, grainwork braces, rings, plates amber beads, figures of birds and beasts and men, or tricked with bangling ornaments, while the spring is found doubled, multiplied into coils, changed into a solid roll, or hinge, or magnified into gigantic proportions in relation to the other parts of the brooch The Italian groups, with either simple or two-springed bow, are very distinct, the Hungaro-Scandinavian examples are marked by their spiral catch and coil spring, the Greeks characteristically seized on the spring as the feature of the fibula and curled the wire into two spirals from the centres of which catch and pin spring The history of the fibula can be traced for some 2,000 years, starting from its first appearance about ten centuries before Christ

THE ONLY DISSOLVER OF THE POISONOUS URIC ACID WHICH EXISTS IN THE BLOOD OF RHEUMATIC AND GOUTY PATIENTS

SALICYLICA is known as a common sense remedy, because it strikes directly at the cause of Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia, while so many so-called specifics and supposed panaceas only treat locally the effects

It has been conceded by eminent scientists that outward applications, such as rubbing with oils, ointments, liniments, and soothing lotions will not eradicate these diseases which are the result of the poisoning of the blood with Uric Acid

SALICYLICA works with marvelous effect on this acid and so removes the disorder It is now exclusively used by all celebrated physicians of America and Europe Highest Medical Academy of Paris reports 95 per cent cures in three days.

REMEMBER

that SALICYLICA is a certain cure for RHEUMATISM GOUT and NEURALGIA. The most intense pains are subdued almost instantly

Mrs Rosa Wood, the Milliner, wishes to correct the mistake that she is carrying the old stock of Mrs. Alden, whose place she bought November last, as she disposed of most of them this spring to an out of town milliner, and keeps as fine and select assortment of American and French goods as she previously has done in New York City and at eastern prices. Ladies who think a good milliner cannot be an artist modiste can prove their mistake by consulting her on designs and styles of wraps and dresses, and always have good fitting and fine finishing which long city experience with first class trade has enabled her to give. An elegant hat can be put up in colors, the latest textures, the best in the market, in finest straw or French chip, in laces and flowers or Ottoman ribbons and plumes $10. An artistically made silk dress in every minute detail for $12. Can eastern prices excel? In her new stock you can find beautiful flowers in silk as well as the cheap ones, elegant plumes and tips in every color, with prices low. Satteens, Surahs and Ottomans in Silks. All novelties in Hats, both in colors and shapes. Dress findings to match goods. Fine Corsets. Fine Gloves for street and opera, all in latest styles from the New York market. Respectfully,
